

COLTS OF CONGRESS.

NEW FACES AND FIGURES IN THE LEGISLATIVE HALLS.

Men Who Now Make Their Debut In the House of Representatives. More Than a Hundred of Them. Some Notable Characters.

(Special Correspondence.)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Each new congress brings new faces to the chambers of the senate and house of representatives, the study of which is one of the most interesting and engrossing occupations of the habitués of the galleries. The fifty-sixth congress, which is now getting fairly down to business, is no exception to this rule, and in the house particularly there are many new faces. Some of them are extremely strong and attractive figures, indicating that force, mental vigor and self assertiveness which will make their possessors positive factors in national legislation.

The membership of the house includes 100 brand new recruits, who now make their debut in the halls of congress. Of this number 57 are Democrats and 47 are Republicans, with one Populist and one independent Silvert.

In view of the protest against the seating of Brigham H. Roberts and the wide public interest the case has awakened, the member from Utah is without doubt one of the most notable figures of this congress. Many of the other new members are notable at first largely by reason of the distinction of the representatives whose shoes they fill. This sort of prominence is, naturally enough, not particularly gratifying to their self respect, and they will doubtless strive to win favorable renown in their own right and on their own merits.

Among these new recruits are the successors of ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed and the late Nelson Dingley of Maine; the successor of the late lamented and venerable "Silver Dick" Bland of Missouri; of Joseph H. Walker of Massachusetts, for two congresses chairman of banking and currency; of Alexander M. Dockery of Missouri, of Governor Joseph D. Sayers of Texas, of Jere Simpson of Kansas and of the picturesque and cultured James Hamilton Lewis of Washington. There are others who by reason of their own peculiar characteristics or unusual attainments attract special attention from the galleries and whose future course will be watched with interest by the outside world as information concerning them is made public through the press. The records of past sessions furnish a pretty accurate indication of what the old members will do in relation to any given proposition, but there is usually more or less speculation in the early days of the session as to just what the colts will do until they get thoroughly broken into the legislative harness.

The successor of ex-Speaker Reed is Amos L. Allen of Alfred, Me., who was a classmate of Mr. Reed in their youth at Bowdoin college. They have been lifelong friends. As private secretary to the speaker for several years back Mr. Allen relieved Mr. Reed of the onerous duties of his strictly representative duties in looking after the varied wants of his constituents, and in doing this he became so well acquainted with the voters of the district and grew so useful to them that to Mr. Reed's voluntary retirement Mr. Allen easily stepped into his place.

The successor of the late Nelson A. Dingley, who attained especial prominence as chairman of the ways and means committee, is Charles E. Littlefield of Rockland, proprietor and editor of a newspaper in that town.

The greatest change in the membership of any delegation is in that from New York state. In the last congress New York's contingent embraced 8 Democrats and 28 Republicans. Now there are 18 Democrats and 10 Republicans. Thirteen out of the 10 new men are Democrats, chiefly from New York and Kings counties. Among the new Manhattan four at least are said to be rich—James M. Levy, Colonel William Astor, Charles Jacob Ruppert and Daniel J. Flannery, the latter being John Murray Mitchell's successor, Colonel Chanler, from the Fourteenth district, is one of the youngest and wealthiest as well as handsomest of all the new recruits, and a lively interest centers in his personality in consequence. A story is told illustrating how the honors of statesmanship came to him unsought. The district had been represented for three terms by Samuel Ely Quigg, Republican, and the Democratic leaders were anxious to pick out a man to defeat Quigg. Amos J. Cummings, the newspaper writer and Democratic representative from the Tenth district, went to Chanler one day and suggested that he become a candidate for congress. Chanler, a real hero of the Spanish war, is nevertheless a quiet and modest fellow, and he frankly told Cummings the idea was absurd. Finally, after much persuasion, young Chanler was induced to accept the nomination and was elected. He is likely to be heard from before the session is over. Another young man from the state of New York who is likely to attract attention is Edward B. Vreeland, from the Thirty-fourth district, who succeeds Warren B. Hooker, who served as chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors. Mr. Vreeland lives on the Seneca Indian reservation and has made much of a study of the CAUSE OF DEAFNESS.

The Most Common Cause Only Recently Discovered.

It has been stated on good medical authority that nine-tenths of the cases of deafness are caused from catarrh or from sore throat trouble. The little tube which leads to the ear from the throat is lined with a sort of velvety structure called mucous membrane. This membrane is simply a continuation of the mucous membrane lining the throat. When disease of any sort attacks the mucous membrane of the throat it is very liable to extend into the eustachian tube and up into the ear.

The history of nearly all cases of deafness is like this: a cold is contracted and neglected, other colds are taken, the throat becomes sore and inflamed, which is aggravated by particles of dust and germs from the air. This condition causes the disease to spread into the tubes that leads to the ear.

It seems a little far fetched to say that most cases of deafness are caused from catarrh, but it is certainly true, and anyone who has had a severe catarrhal cold must have noticed how the hearing was affected while the cold lasted.

With catarrh sufferers this impairment of hearing becomes chronic and grows worse the longer the catarrh is neglected.

You can cure catarrh and deafness by the regular use of an excellent new preparation called Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, composed of antiseptic remedies which act both on the mucous membranes but principally and most effectively on the blood, eliminating the catarrhal poison from the system.

People whose hearing is defective may think it a little remarkable that a simple and harmless tablet would very often remove all traces of deafness, but when it is remembered that catarrh causes the deafness and that the catarrh is easily cured by the regular use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets there is no mystery about it.

If you are subject to nasal catarrh or catarrh of throat, bronchial tubes or catarrh of stomach and liver, the safest and most effective treatment is the new catarrh specific, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, sold by all druggists at 50 cents for full sized package.

Among the new representatives from Pennsylvania is a grandson of a president in the person of Mr. Rufus K. Polk of Danville, representing the Seventeenth district. He, like James K. Polk, his grandfather, is a Democrat and succeeds "Farmer" Kulp of Shannokin. Another new man is Mr. James K. Polk Hall of Ridgway, Elk county, a bright lawyer, succeeding William C. Arnold. A Democrat and lawyer is Captain Henry D. Green of Reading, from the Ninth district, elected last month to succeed the late well known Daniel Ermentrout, who died suddenly in September.

A new Keystone State Republican member is Mr. Joseph E. Thropp of Bedford, a thriving business man of fashionable tastes, succeeding Josiah D. Hicks of Altoona.

The Michigan delegation contains four new members, and among these is a Methodist divine, the Rev. Washington Gardner, from the Third district, a picturesque character, and Mr. Henry C. Smith, from the Adrian district, who is heralded as a great story teller and adds one more to the number of Smiths from Michigan and in the house already, making three Smiths in Michigan's delegation and five in the house.

The successor from the late Richard P. Bland's district (the Eighth Missouri) is Dorsey W. Shackelford of Jefferson City, a lawyer and judge and shrewd business man. He is an owner of land and zinc mines.

In Home Testimony.

The following public statement comes from a resident, who can be seen on the streets, who can be interviewed at his home, and who will be only too pleased to give minute particulars to anyone who really suffers from any of the consequences which inevitably follow weakened or over-excited kidneys.

Is not such evidence of more value than a public statement from some citizen of a far away place? Mr. Frank Pease of 204 Russell ave., engineer, says: "I cannot say too much for Doan's Kidney Pills. I felt badly for some time before my attention was drawn to them and I procured them from Lamparter & Co.'s drug store. Prior to using them my back caused me much misery. I was embarrassed by the irregular action of the kidney secretions, and suffered from attacks of dull headaches when my kidneys were sluggish. The secretions from those organs contained a thick, white deposit. I had no energy and was depressed the whole time. Doan's Kidney Pills promptly relieved me and finally removed the whole trouble."

Medicine Lodge (Kan.) district, is Chester I. Long, Simpson's predecessor in the last congress, so that the two have come to be called "alternates" from that district. Mr. Long is a handsome fellow, tall and dark, and a prosperous lawyer.

One of the most unique and interesting characters among the new members from the west is Francis W. Cushman, representative at large from the state of Washington, who succeeds James Hamilton Lewis of Seattle. Mr. Cushman, whose home is at Tacoma, is heralded as a veritable genius and bids fair to become a picturesque and interesting and amiable figure as Lewis was. He is 6 feet tall, slender and slightly stooping, with angular features and keen gray eyes. His voice is shrill and penetrating. He is famous already in his own state as a natural orator of great eloquence, and on account of his apt and forceful illustrations and his homely, quaint originality in handling subjects on the stump he has won the sobriquet of "the Abe Lincoln of the Pacific coast." His language, though clear and strong, is yet so fancifully embroidered as to remind one of the style so much affected by statesmen of the middle west in the days of Thomas H. Benton. He is said to be a particularly shining light in debate on all topics concerning the far west and northwest and particularly on Alaska and the boundary question.

And there are others, but the names mentioned are sufficient to indicate the general character of the colts of the Fifty-sixth congress and that some of them will cut something of a swath in this session. SAMUEL HUBBARD.

Easy to Have Good Dresses at Reasonable Cost. (Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—It has always seemed to me particularly hard that young folks could not have everything they wanted and, above all, young girls to whom becomingness of dress and daintiness are so much of a necessity. I doubt if there is any longing so agonizing as the young girl's desire to have the pretty things necessary to set off her face and form to their best advantage and to know that unkind destiny has placed them beyond her reach.

It is easy in these days, or comparatively so, to have good dresses at a low cost, because it takes so much less stuff to make a gown than it did even a year ago, and, besides, if one gets paid or some one of the woolly surfaced stuffs little or no trimming is needed. The solid colors are more refined, yet for the young girl in almost all of the designs is nice and suitable, and one can always get an incredible amount of wear out of them, as the all wool twills and other of wool plaids will wash like calico. There is a neat and pretty plaid dress shown in this illustration, the prevailing tints and colors being in greens, with here and there a line of dull red and a dash of creamy white. Plain plaids are almost entirely relegated to children and to borders for golf capes.

The golf cape has gone far beyond the original limit set for it, and now nearly half the women and even children one meets has on one of these capes. Most of them have the body of the cape right side out, and this is of rough stuff between astrakhan cloth and Irish frieze in appearance in solid color. The back of this material, which is very thick and warm, is plain, so that the ruffle on the cape is simply turned wrong side out. The hood is made in the same way, and a little shawl fringe carrying the colors finishes it. These capes are certainly bright and pretty, though intended strictly for golfing or runabouts.

The illustration shows three things, one being the gown, which can be worn at home or abroad; next the postiche guimpe yoke. This is made of some kind of light silk, tulle, or, in fact, it can be trimmed in any way. The pretty new openwork silks would be very suitable for these yoke guimpes. The form of it shows that it should be made up over a stiff lining. The collar may be overlaid with lace, or that, too, may be tulle. It has a band of bias velvet one inch and a half wide all around it and fastens invisibly in the back. This is pretty to wear with any dress.

The hat, which is the object of the fair maiden's earnest adoration, is an emerald of silk beaver in a rich tan color. There is a band of seal brown velvet and strings of the same. Inside the brim is a seal velvet rosette with a gilt ornament. Directly on top is a mass of velvet valdoflours with all their rich shades of yellow up to golden brown, and this is topped by a true lover's knot of wired velvet ribbon. Just imagine a sweet little face, with brown hair and eyes, under this hat! Golden hair would be as pretty and carry out the scheme of color just as well.

There is a queer novelty in made up velvet gowns. It reminds one a little of the Alaska Indian bedquits, in that it is sewed with tiny pearl shirt buttons, like dots. Some have them scattered all over the dress; others have them arranged in various patterns along the edges of tunics, etc. Polka dots are seen in all the fabrics now arriving for spring and next summer. Some of them are worked in silks on woolen surface, and on silks they are

END OF THE INDIANS.

WHAT THE ALLOTMENT OF THEIR LAND MEANS.

Emigration to Mexico to Avoid the Encroachments of Civilization. Fights With Cattlemen and Land Grabbers.

(Special Correspondence.)

CHECOTAH, I. T., Dec. 19.—The allotment of lands is being made to the various Indian tribes in the Indian Territory, and in a few months the tribal governments will have ended. Many of the Kickapoos have refused to be enumerated in the census and are emigrating to Mexico, and a number of the Seminoles are also preparing to leave for Chihuahua, to which place some of their ancestors migrated at the conclusion of the Seminoles war. They reason that it is no use to remain and take their allotments—"white man get all the lands by and by." The reason for the Kickapoos leaving is that it has been discovered that the treaty with them is fraudulent—that the two Indians who did sign it were drunk at the time. They were recently tried for treason and would have been shot only for the timely substitution of the United States court for their tribal court. The remaining Kickapoos will send a delegation to Washington and ask that the white settlers be ejected and that their lands remain as communal property. By this means white settlers may be kept out of the nation unless the Indian authorities give them a permit to lease lands. But when the lands are allotted in severalty the settler will have to deal only with the individual Indian, and of course in time the Indian would have very little land left.

The Indians of some of the other nations are, however, favorable to allotment, as they can lease all except a few acres to cattlemen and live in houses upon the reservation. Immense tracts of mineral and grazing lands are being leased by syndicates and it seems that a wave of prosperity will soon strike this almost unknown section of the United States. Each man will be allotted 300 acres of land for every member of his family. He may rent or sell all excepting 60 acres. When that is gone, he is almost a pauper. Their tribal governments are virtually abolished, and under the treaty they will cease altogether in ten years, when the Indian will no longer have a government and ceases to be a citizen, for at present he is a voter.

The five civilized nations of the territory are so called to designate them

A Difficult Lay.

A New England woman is the owner of a hen which appears to choose her surroundings with a discriminating eye.

Soon after her present owner acquired the hen she discovered the creature's fondness for stepping into the house whenever she could effect an entrance and laying an egg on the down coverlet which ornamented the bed in the "best chamber."

One day the hen managed to get in unobserved during a season of sweeping, and her presence was only discovered as she made her way hastily out of the side door, cackling with triumph, some time later.

As the best room coverlet had been out of the way during the sweeping, the mistress of the house looked about for the egg which she felt sure had been laid somewhere. She found it, after half an hour's search, on the plush matel covered in the parlor, where the hen must have sat in state between a china shepherdess and a glass vase.

Nothing on the mantelpiece had been disturbed, although just how the hen had managed the delicate business will never be known.—Youth's Companion.

A SONG OF FORGETTING.

The hours as playthings were—oh, mad
And laughter lived in every word
What time that love was young and glad
In every pulse beat quick and stirred.

The wild plum blossomed in the dawn,
The rabbit raced across the plain,
And frightened birds fled hurried when
Our hounds and horses tramped the grain.

Down in the grove beside the spring
We rested when the rose was white,
And listened to the wood bird sing
A lullaby when day was done.

But, ah, you wandered from my side
And paved the long lone lane of years
With memory's stones, a lone and wide
For now to soothe with memory tears.

And now you come—come back to me
To fill, as then, the old time place—
Where is the magic of your play?
What change has come upon your face?

Oh, friend, to love and still love on,
To live on chaff instead of grain

The New Cure for Kidney, Bladder and Urine Acid Troubles.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Morrow's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. J. C. Morrow, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing kidney, liver, bladder and urine acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the DEMOCRAT who have not already tried it may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in the DEMOCRAT and send your address to Dr. J. C. Morrow & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular 50 cent and dollar sizes are sold by all first-class druggists.

Another Citizen Who Adds His Testimony to What Has Been Said.

The people of this state do not hesitate to add their testimony to that of other citizens who have used Morrow's Kidney-oids for lame back and all ailments arising from disordered kidneys. Kidney-oids will cure dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness and all kindred ailments. Here is what Mrs. Ora Markwith, 108 North Detroit st., Bellefontaine, Ohio, says: "About four years ago I began to fail in health. I suffered with kidney and liver trouble, also backache, rheumatism, nervousness, and bad spells of dizziness. I was treated by different doctors, but they gave me no relief. Hearing about Morrow's Kidney-oids and Liver-lax I began to feel better. I ordered a box of Morrow's Kidney-oids and Liver-lax and I am satisfied of a complete cure."

Morrow's Kidney-oids are not pills but Yellow Tablets and sell at 50 cents a box. Morrow's Liver-lax are small red granules and sell at 25c a box. Both remedies can be procured at all drug stores and at John Lamparter & Co.'s drug store.
